

Reading and Writing for the Stage Curriculum

Course Description:

Credit: 1

Prerequisite: Junior or Senior Status

Reading and Writing for the Stage will explore, read, and respond to plays written during major periods of dramatic history. Students will respond to these plays through writing, which may include journal entries, literary analysis, play reviews or their own original scripts. Students will explore the major historical events and A2dramatic theories surrounding each play. Students will also communicate their understanding of these plays through presentations of their ideas, which may include presenting set designs, costume designs, monologues, or their own opinions of the author’s works.

Key Ideas and Details
(Key Ideas and Details) Use comprehension strategies to explain elements of literature. 1. Read closely to determine what the text says explicitly and to make logical inferences from it; cite specific textual evidence when writing or speaking to support conclusions drawn from the text	Cite strong and thorough textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as inferences drawn from the text, including determining where the text leaves matters uncertain.	find and use strong examples within the text to support my analysis of the text.
	Determine two or more themes or central ideas of a text and analyze their development over the course of the text, including how they interact and build on one another to produce a complex account; provide an objective summary of the text.	find multiple themes or central ideas of a text
2. Determine central ideas or themes of a text and analyze their development, summarize the key supporting details and ideas.	Analyze the impact of the author’s choices regarding how to develop and relate elements of a story or drama (e.g., where a story is set, how the action is ordered, how the characters are introduced and developed).	analyze how the author develops elements of the story and how those choices impact the story (theme, setting, characterization, etc.)
3. Analyze how and why individuals, events and ideas develop and interact over the cores of a text.	Employ the full range of research-based comprehension strategies, including making connections, determining importance, questioning, visualizing, making inferences, summarizing, and monitoring for comprehension.	use a variety of reading strategies.

Craft and Structure
4. Interpret words and phrases as they are used in a text, including determining technical, connotative, and figurative meaning, and analyze how specific word choices shape meaning or tone.	Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in the text, including figurative and connotative meanings; analyze the impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone, including words with multiple meanings or language that is particularly fresh, engaging, or beautiful. (Include Shakespeare as well as other authors.)	determine connotative meaning using context clues
5. Analyze the structure of texts, including how specific sentences, paragraphs, and larger portions of the text (e.g., a section, chapter, scene, or stanza) relate to each other and the whole.	Analyze how an author's choices concerning how to structure specific parts of a text (e.g., the choice of where to begin or end a story, the choice to provide a comedic or tragic resolution) contribute to its overall structure and meaning as well as its aesthetic impact.	analyze how authors structure plots to create tonal effects and aesthetic impact (e.g. pacing, flashbacks, mystery, tension, surprise.)
		monitor my comprehension while reading
6. Assess how point of view or purpose shapes the content and style of a text.	Analyze a case in which grasping point of view requires distinguishing what is directly stated in a text from what is really meant (e.g., satire, sarcasm, irony, or understatement).	analyze what is stated and intended within the text
Integration of Knowledge and Ideas
7. Integrate and evaluate content presented in diverse media and formats, including visually and quantitatively, as well as in words.	Analyze multiple interpretations of a story, drama, or poem (e.g., recorded or live production of a play or recorded novel or poetry), evaluating how each version interprets the source text. (Include at least one play by Shakespeare and one play by an American dramatist.)	compare and contrast multiple different artistic mediums concerning a similar theme
9. Analyze how two or more texts address similar themes or topics in order to building knowledge or to compare the approaches the authors take.	Demonstrate knowledge of eighteenth-, nineteenth- and early-twentieth-century foundational works of American literature, including how two or more texts from the same period treat similar themes or topics.	demonstrate knowledge of 18th century American literature

Range of Reading and Level of Text Complexity
